City may buy Woodrome site

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Granite City may purchase the former downtown site of Woodrome Oldsmobile.

"Basically, it's available and the price is right," said Alan Orbals, the city's economic development director.

"We don't have any plans for it, but it's about an acre of property squared-off at Madison Avenue and 19th Street, so it will be good for future development."

The property fronts 1901-07 Madison Ave. and extends back along 19th Street to Grand Avenue.

Orbals said the city's purchase would be made with money from the Tax Increment Finance District's $2 million bond issue sold in 1991.

issue was to raise money for acquiring downtown property," Orbals said, adding that the city has about $1.4 million remaining from the bond issue after previous downtown property purchases for the Madison County Transit terminal, the Illinois Driver's License facility and other projects.

thing planned, prices have a way of inflating," he said.

"It's easier to go to a developer and say you already own the land than if you can only say you can get the land."

Orbals said Magna Bank, the current owner of the former Woodrome auto agency property, came to the city and offered it for sale "at a price considerably lower than we are paying for

Clerk killed at service stationBy Bob Slate
Staff writer

A Granite City business owner was murdered early Saturday morning at a Pontoon Beach gas station, where he had been working a second job to supplement his income.

Dead is Hugh Harrigan, 56, of the 2200 block of Cardinal Avenue, owner of Beans and Jeans clothing store, 3361 Fehling Road in Granite City. He was killed at about 1 a.m. Saturday at the Shell Super K gas station, 4160 Pontoon Road.

The Major Case Squad of Greater St. Louis is investigating the case.

Capt. Jim Lay of the St. Clair County Sheriff's Department declined to reveal the cause of death, but sources said Harrigan was shot in the leg and in the chest.

Lay said the homicide may have been motivated by robbery.

"We have no suspects at this time. We are looking for any customers who may have been in the station between midnight and 1 a.m.," Lay said.

Pontoon Beach gas stations and convenience stores have been victim to a number of armed robberies in the past three months. The proximity of the village to interstate highways makes the gas stations a convenient target for robbers, police said.

Chuck Keller, of Keller Oil Co. in Effingham, said Saturday that his company is offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

Anyone with information should contact the Pontoon Beach Police Department at 931-0738.

Citizens group to protest scrubbing of scrubbersBy Mike Myers

A local citizens group will take part in "Lights Out, Illinois!" on Thursday, but a member said she finds it hard to be optimistic about its success.

Heled Hawkins said members of POWER — People Opposed to Wild Electric Rates — will join with members of SCRIB and other citizens groups and turn out their lights for 15 minutes starting at 6:29 p.m. Thursday to protest Illinois Power's plans to discontinue construction of scrubbers at its Baldwin electricity generating station.

Instant replay: Snow hits area with 2nd, bigger punch

By Ann-Marie Campos
Staff writer

When predictions for a snow storm came true Thursday, area residents and businesses found themselves in a whirlwind.

Nearly a foot of powdery snow was recorded — at the upper range of what forecasters had predicted.

The snowstorm forced the closing of nearly all area schools on both Thursday and Friday. It also provided a stiff challenge for area street crews, which had to battle a snowfall that — unlike the previous week's storm — "just didn't let up," said Granite City Street Superintendent Clayton "Jug" Harrison.

The 12-inch accumulation represented the largest snowfall to hit the area since 1982. It not only made driving treacherous, but also caused a run on many stores selling merchandise that residents believed they couldn't do without.

Local grocery stores and hardware stores reported being swamped with customers scurrying to pick up last-minute necessities, such as shovels and leaves of bread.

Don Caughron, owner of Don's Hardware in downtown Granite City, said his store was one of the few where a snow shovel could still be found.

He said he had sold his remaining supply of about 72

Bus-truck crash, 2A

shovels from last year during the snow that fell the previous week. But then he got a new shipment of 420 shovels and snow pushers just in time for the first snowflakes to fall on Wednesday. On Thursday, he received another 40.

Salt supplies have been just as hot due to the snow and cold weather.

The hardware store sold out of the 1,200 pounds of road salt that had been in stock from last year, but received another 6,000 pounds on Thursday.

"I just know where to get it," Caughron said. "They've been sending them (salt customers) out here from Wal-Mart, Central Hardware and Carter Lumber."

Grocery stores were also extra busy. Many residents made stops at local markets to make food purchases that would last them through the harsh weather.

John Clonko, owner of Clonko's, said the majority of purchases were ground beef, milk and bread — with a few extras.

"Many people came in the day before the snow, so we're much slower today (Thursday)," Clonko said.

Food supplies are holding up better than hardware supplies. "Supplies are doing really

Driver charged

Don S. Skaggs, 37, of the 2800 block of Lincoln Avenue, was arrested at 8:43 a.m. Feb. 22 for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Skaggs' red GMC pickup was east bound on Niedringhaus Avenue near Delmar Avenue when it crossed the oncoming traffic lane and struck a red Ford van parked on the north (opposite) side of the street, witnesses told police.

Skaggs, who was delirious, and his four-year-old daughter, a passenger in the car, were both taken by ambulance to the emergency room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, according to police reports.

While Skaggs told an officer he had no memory of the accident, his wife told police he had taken a prescription pain pill earlier in the morning, a police report states.

Skaggs consented to allow a blood sample to be taken, and he was charged.

Battery alleged

Robert J. "Bobby" Niesporek Jr., 17, of the 800 block of Poplar Street, was arrested for battery at 11:26 p.m. Feb. 21.

He allegedly struck a 23-year-old resident of the 2300 block of Benton Street in the arm, head and neck with a baseball bat. Niesporek was released on a notice to appear in court.

Theft of a weapon alleged

A 33-year-old West Granite man was charged with theft of a weapon Monday in relation to an alleged shooting incident near his home Sunday night.

Bond on the felony warrant is $15,000.

Norman W. Tappel, of the 2100 block of Illinois Avenue, also faces misdemeanor charges of unlawful use of a weapon, resisting arrest, unlawful possession of a weapon, reckless conduct and disorderly conduct in relation to the incident. His wife, Christine S. Tappel, 35, was charged with disorderly conduct.

Officers were dispatched to the 2100 block of Illinois Avenue at about 8:30 p.m. Feb. 21 in reference to a shot being fired. An officer who was dispatched to the scene reported finding .38-caliber ammunition and cigarettes alleged to contain cannabis in his possession.

Christine Tappel then allegedly cursed at officers and was arrested, according to a police report.

A loaded, recently-fired .38-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver was found hidden in a waterbed in the home, the report states. A computer check of the serial number on the gun showed it had been stolen.

Officers also confiscated a loaded .22-caliber Marlin rifle from the home, the report states.

Domestic charge filed

Allen E. Barr, 24, of the 2500 block of Nameless Drive, was arrested at 8:56 a.m. Feb. 21 for domestic battery.

He allegedly struck a 22-year-old woman, who lives with him, several times on her neck with his open hand.

Barr was treated at the emergency room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for hand injuries he sustained when punching glass items in the home, according to a police report.

Two men charged

Robert L. York, 27, of the Parktowne West Mobile Home

Park, was arrested at 6:23 p.m. Feb. 21 for unlawful possession of cannabis, resisting a police officer, disorderly conduct and a Pontoon Beach warrant charging him with failure to appear in court on a previous charge of driving with a suspended license.

Ronald A. Rhoades, 28, was arrested for disorderly conduct in the same incident.

Officers were dispatched to McDonald's restaurant, 2045 Madison Ave., where an employee said Rhoades had flipped cigarette ashes while the employee was sweeping the floor.

The employee also told police that Rhoades and York refused to move from the non-smoking section of the restaurant when asked.

When an officer asked the two men to leave the restaurant, they refused, according to a police report. York allegedly became combative with an officer and had to be subdued with pepper mace, the report states.

A hand-rolled cigarette, alleged to contain cannabis, was in York's possession when he was arrested, the report states. York was lodged pending $350 bail.

DUI charged

Randal L. Young, 32, of the 2400 block of Missouri Avenue, was arrested at 8:43 p.m. Feb. 20 for driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer stopped a beige Ford at 24th and Adams Avenue for an alleged traffic violation.

Young, the driver, took three field sobriety tests and a breath analysis test and was charged. He posted $107 bail and was released.

Woman charged

Cathie J. Kuna, 27, of the 2200 block of Missouri Avenue, was arrested at 8:02 p.m. Feb. 20 for driving under the influence of alcohol, leaving the scene of an accident with injuries, failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and operating an uninsured vehicle.

Officers responding to an accident on Highway 31 in front of A.J. Smith reported meeting witnesses who said that a 1984 Chevrolet Cavalier struck the back end of a pickup truck and a woman, the driver, fled the scene to inspect the damage and then left the scene.

A passenger in the pickup truck then jumped into a passing pizza delivery car and followed the Cavalier to the Granite City Inspection Department animal shelter, where the Cavalier got stuck in a ditch, according to a police report.

When an officer arrived at the animal shelter, Kuna admitted to hitting the truck, the report states.

She took three field sobriety tests, refused to take a breath analysis test, was charged and released on a notice to appear in court.

The driver of the pickup truck was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he received seven stitches, according to the report.

good," he said. "The trucks are running slow, but we've gotten all our supplies in."

Many people stocked up prior to the storm, so they could avoid going out once it hit. But some people, such as the staff members at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, knew there was no such thing as a snow holiday for them.

"We have a system in which we have a list of (employee) volunteers with four-wheel-drive vehicles who will provide transportation for other employees that need it," a spokesman at the Granite City hospital said.

She also said that, on Thursday, the emergency room staff had not seen any major increases in cases due to snow-related accidents.

Harrison said the street department had a much more difficult time removing this week's 12-inch snow than last week's nine inches.

"It just didn't ever let up. Last week, (the snowfall) quit for about three hours between midnight and 3 a.m. and we got it cleared pretty good when it broke. But (this week) it just kept coming, and the wind kept blowing it back in the street after we would clear it," Harrison said.

Street crews worked around the clock Wednesday and Thursday, and were still removing snow from city streets Friday afternoon.

Weather has inmates dreaming of gardening

Winter weather has gardeners dreaming of spring. But there may be no group of gardeners more eager to get outside than the ones who cultivate a 100-foot by 200-foot plot behind the Madison County Nursing Home, 2121 Troy Road.

These gardeners have spent the entire winter indoors, in jail. Last summer's experiment to allow a select group of jail inmates to plant, weed, fertilize and otherwise tend the plants was "a total success," Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich said.

"Absolutely, we will do it again. Now we have our feet on the ground," the sheriff said. "Last year we didn't know what we were doing."

The fenced-in field was plowed last fall and soon will be plowed again in time for early plantings, he said.

Although beginners, the inmates produced enough last year to help feed jail residents and had enough left over to freeze and to share with the county juvenile home, nursing home and sheltered care home.

Churchich said his gardeners learned which crops didn't produce well and which ones were the biggest hits with fellow inmates.

Last year they planted lettuce, cabbage, radishes, onions, corn, carrots, cucumbers, green beans, potatoes, peppers, tomatoes and melons. The prisoners were "ecstatic" over the results, he said.

Churchich said he did not know how much money the inmates saved taxpayers by providing fresh produce. But, he said, there is no way to put a dollar amount on the morale boost for inmates who got outside and did a day's work several times a week.

"The ones who worked looked forward to it. They could see when we'd have food stuffs on the plate and they'd tell the others that they grew it. It really worked well," Churchich said.

Bus-truck accident injures 30 on interstate

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Anderson Hospital and the village of Maryville both got the unwelcome chance to try out emergency contingency plans when about 30 people were injured Thursday in an icy crash involving a Greyhound bus.

The driver of the Greyhound bus, 39-year-old Frederick Hurley of St. Louis, was critically injured in the crash, which occurred at 2:25 p.m. when the bus slammed into a tractor-trailer on an icy Interstate 70-55 on the S-curve at U.S. 40 near Troy.

Hurley, who was rushed to St. Louis University Medical Center by helicopter, was in critical condition Friday in the intensive care unit with multiple fractures.

Anderson Hospital is required to have a disaster plan and run disaster drills at least twice a year, Director of Nursing Pat Pevery said Friday.

She said the practice paid off when the hospital was notified on Thursday that 29 injured passengers from the wrecked bus would be en route.

This is a plan that is implemented whenever there is an influx of patients, depending on the number and the severity of injuries," she said. "Every department in the hospital has its role defined."

The hospital set up a triage area to assess the extent of the passengers' injuries and provide first aid.

Thirteen doctors were either in-house at the time, or called in to work with the accident victims. Two members of the hospital's chaplain program also were called in to offer support.

Pevery said this was the first time she could remember being able to implement the plan. She said things went smoothly, and both Maryville Police Chief Don Sonnenberg and Troy Police Chief Robert Noonan praised the way the hospital responded to the emergency.

"I was very impressed with the way the Anderson Hospital emergency room was prepared," Sonnenberg said.

"They really did a great job. Sometimes those type of drills and training are really monotonous, but in this case it really paid off."

Administrator William J. Hurley said the hospital received numerous calls from people in the community who offered to help with transportation and housing.

Pevery called the community response "wonderful."

The accident also gave the village of Maryville a chance to use a contingency plan for disasters, Sonnenberg said.

Passengers from the bus were taken from Anderson to the Maryville Senior Citizens Center, where they were given coffee, doughnuts and later pizza.

Phones were available, and a chaplain was on hand there to help contact anxious family members.

State Police and Greyhound officials also interviewed the passengers while they were at the center.

"We had kind of planned on this type of operation with the board, because of some of the experiences we've had, particularly with bad weather," Sonnenberg said.

He said the village board had specifically discussed using the senior center to temporarily house people in an emergency.

Sonnenberg said he was able to reach some of the board members on Thursday, and got the OK to use the center.

Passengers were at the facility until about 11:30 p.m., when Greyhound took them back to St. Louis to spend the night in a motel before resuming their trip on Friday morning.

Union charges county with using unfair labor practices

A month after the Madison County Board rejected a contract formulated by its own negotiators and ratified by the union membership, union officials are charging the county with bad-faith bargaining.

AFSCME Local 799 filed an unfair labor practice charge against Madison County on Thursday, accusing the board of not giving its negotiators sufficient authority and information to conduct contract talks.

After the County Board rejected the contract, they came back, and wanted all sorts of things they never asked for in the first place," said AFSCME spokesman Kent Beauchamp, who filed the charge with the State Labor Relations Board in Springfield. "They certainly bargained in good faith."

County Administrator Jim Monday declined to comment on the charge.

County wants to split workers from union

County officials want to split a union representing more than 400 county workers, but union leaders are voting to fight the move.

Members of the County Board's Health Institutions and Negotiating committees have asked AFSCME Local 799 to either accept a wage freeze for more than 100 employees at the nursing and sheltered care homes or split those workers from Local 799 so a separate contract can be negotiated, board member Al Charleston of Alton said.

Jim Goodall, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees local, confirmed county negotiators had made the proposal.

"They put this crap on the table and said we have to either agree to the concessions or split the contract. We told them we are not willing to split our union at this time," Goodall said Thursday.

The proposed wage freeze reportedly had the support of 35 sheltered care home workers who signed informal petitions circulated this week. The proposal was rejected by about 70 employees at the nursing home.

Goodall said the petitions were part of the Health Institutions and Negotiating committees' attempt to split the union. The Health Institutions Committee oversees operation of both facilities.

Goodall acknowledged the petitions were circulated by some union members but said they did so against his advice.

Charleston said the petitions showed there are workers willing to make concessions to keep the financially troubled homes in the black.

"What we really want is a separate contract so we can control costs out there at those homes," Charleston said.

Workers propose wage freeze

Care home employees would make sacrifice

Employees at the Madison County Shelter Care Home are offering to take a three-year wage freeze to keep the home open.

"We recognize we've been well-paid for our jobs, and we're willing to make the sacrifice necessary to keep the sheltered care home open. It's a goodwill effort," home administrator Donna Marrone said.

She was one of 10 supervisors and 35 union workers to sign petitions offering wage freezes for three years.

But their counterparts at the county nursing home have rejected wage freezes, which could give ammunition to County Board members who want to shutter both homes and move residents to private nursing homes.

"The homes are in poor physical and financial condition, with skyrocketing repair and utility costs every year and little revenue to cover them. The sheltered care home turned 100 this year; the nursing home is 105."

The homes had a combined surplus of more than $1 million at the end of fiscal 1992, but that was expected to be exhausted in a few years. Some board members expected the homes should be closed and the residents relocated to private nursing homes when the surplus is gone.

"We've got to make sure this is going to be at least a break-even operation," board member Alan Dunstan of Troy said at a recent committee meeting.

Local 799 of American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, representing more than 100 workers at both homes, is negotiating a three-year contract with the county.

Wage increases requested by AFSCME would drain the surplus even sooner, board member Bob Stille says. Stille is chairman of the board's Health Institutions Committee and a member of the Negotiating Committee.

Union and county negotiators will not disclose the amount of the pay hike sought by Local 799, but a tentative agreement that was rejected by the County Board called for raises in the 3 percent to 4 percent range.

The 35 union workers and 10 supervisors at the shelter home signed petitions last week offering to forgo raises for the next three years. The petitions were given to County Administrator Jim Monday, who forwarded them to the Health Institutions Committee.

Nursing home workers would not agree to a similar proposal, officials said.

Local 799 President Jim Goodall declined to comment on the petitions or the situation at acted certain fringe benefits, including paid lunches and a general election holiday.

The contract was approved by union members Jan. 19 but was narrowly rejected by the County Board the next day after some board members complained the raises were too steep.

In addition, a controversial provision calling for an automatic three hours pay for maintenance workers on call during the weekend drew heated criticism from some board members.

The agreement was voted down 14-13 by board members. County negotiators were told to go back to the table and demand concessions.

Union officials said the board should have made its wishes known to its negotiators before talks began in September.

"The law says the County Board must send a representative to the bargaining table who has the authority to bargain and reach agreements on behalf of the employer. These negotiations were conducted over many months and it's inconceivable that the county's chief negotiators did not know the wishes of the employer when they sat across the table from us and reached a tentative agreement," Beauchamp said.

Under the latest county offer, most Local 799 workers would get 3 percent annual raises. However, employees at the nursing and sheltered care homes would not get a pay hike, according to a written statement from union officials.

County officials have said they want to cap salaries at the two homes because rapidly rising rent and sheltered care homes threatening to drive both homes into the red.

If costs are not brought under control at the homes, some board members have said they will propose closing the facilities. In addition, a proposal to build a new, combined $4.5 million nursing and sheltered care home could be doomed if the financial picture at the homes does not brighten.

David Williams checks his sound equipment before taping a mayoral candidate-for Tuesday's television presentation.

Mayoral candidates on TV Tuesday

"Know Your Candidates," a 30-minute television program featuring Granite City's mayoral candidates, will be shown at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday on local community access cable television Channel 18.

All 10 mayoral candidates on the April 20 ballot agreed to appear on "Community Spotlight," a regular feature on Channel 18.

Each candidate was given up to three minutes to explain his platform and the issues he believes are important to Granite City. The candidates will appear in the same order they will appear on the April ballot.

Dave Williams, program director for Channel 18, videotaped the candidates' presentations last week. The candidates were each allowed to preview and select the video of their presentation that will be broadcast.

"All of them made the most of their time," Williams said. "I think everyone will be pleased and it gives good information about every candidate."

Candidates for mayor, in ballot order, are Alderman Paul Fisk, Alderman Jeff Worthen, Alderman Walter Milton, businessman and body-builder Dan McGuire, restaurant owner Archie Lupardus, Alderman Dan Brock, Joseph McGinness, former assistant police chief Ron Selph, James Bailey Sr. and Steve Bolling.

"Know Your Candidates" will air again at 6:30 p.m. March 4, March 10, March 23 and March 25.

ICC OKs rate break for foundry

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Commerce Commission has approved a 10-year agreement giving American Steel Foundry in Granite City a reduced electricity rate from Illinois Power Co.

The deal calls for a special lower rate for all foundry power used during the first two years and a reduced rate affecting about 40 percent of the power usage for the next eight years. The steel foundry closed in June 1991 and is slated to resume production Tuesday.

American Steel Foundry probably would have looked elsewhere for production if we were unable to offer this incentive," Illinois Power spokesman Craig Nesbitt said. Plant manager Bill Donovan said Thursday the reduced power rates were very important in permitting the plant to reopen because electricity is one of the largest costs of the foundry and is especially important in being able to compete.

Neither Nesbitt or Donovan would disclose the specific savings. The plant builds castings and underframes of railroad cars. Some 275 workers laid off in the 1991 closing are slated to be rehired, Donovan said. Although officials have said they hope to hire up to 1,300 employees within three years, Donovan said the timetable would depend on product sales. He said about 400 to 500 laid-off employees will have first chance at jobs in the reopened plant.

United Steelworkers official Buddy Davis of Wood River said he has asked the company to hire 75 former workers at the Owens-Brockway Glass Containers foundry in Alton.

Pitfalls when pressing the flesh

Carol Clarkin writes this weekly column for the Edwardsville Journal.

Maybe you didn't find it funny, but I did. As Bill Clinton began his brief first-time televised Oval Office speech — and before Wednesday night's address to Congress — he decided to do what he does best. He took his plan to some "real people." In this case, construction workers. And it nearly backfired.

There was a President Clinton in jeans, leather jacket and cowboy boots — a sort of cross between a working rancher and a member of a motorcycle club. He was heading into what was supposed to be an informal lunch-break chat with some hard-hat workers on a public works project. A promotional photo session, if you will.

But complications set in, with the unexpected arrival on the scene of two ladies — Washington Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly and congressional delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton.

There was a junior aide to Clinton, trying to hustle the ladies away from the porch on which the informal chat was to be held.

The rumored Clinton temper flared when he realized what was happening — and he forgot he was wearing a wireless microphone so that reporters in the White House pressroom could listen in on the chat.

Result — not only did those reporters but a lot of us watching evening TV news get to hear — and see — Clinton grab the aide and pull him into the shrubbery while vehemently exclaiming, "Listen, God damn it! You can't bring me out here with the mayor and the congressman, and push them back!"

There was probably more, but aides in the pressroom quickly cut off the audio.

According to reports from those on the scene, Bill didn't cheer up noticeably until he rejoined the crowd away from the porch and, again, did one of the things he does best — get out among 'em and press the flesh.

It was the stuff of which cartoons are made and I'm sure it was embarrassing — which is probably why I found it funny.

Long ago, I read some fool scholarly book which contended that what amuses us most are other people's pitfalls.

If that's really the case, I'm guilty, but not apologetic. It's the kind of things that could happen to any of us. And, on the plus side, it makes Clinton seem even more like us "real people" — just as prone to error and capable of goofing up.

Speaking of "prone to error" and "goofing up," it seems like a good time to put it into personal context.

Back in December, I really blew it when I attributed authorship of the famous, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus" to Clement Moore. Moore, of course, wrote "A Visit from St. Nicholas" and the true author of the letter to Virginia was Francis Church.

I knew this and have absolutely no excuse or explanation for my error. In fact, I hadn't realized I'd made it until I saw the column in print and immediately recognized it. Too late.

What's nice is that a Collinsville reader, Margaret Buel, caught it and dropped me a note. I'm actually surprised that she was the only one who did — or at least, the only one to write.

I appreciated her note — and not just because she also wrote that she enjoyed my columns. That's always nice to know, but it's also good to realize that readers are alert as to what they're reading.

This may be as good a time as any to thank those readers who have written or phoned or sent Christmas cards over the nearly five years I've written this column.

I've appreciated hearing from you, with the possible exception of one who failed to sign his name (and it was obviously a he).

Most of the calls and letters have been of a complimentary nature, but occasionally they've been from someone who disagreed with an opinion I've expressed — and that's fine, too.

Congress will be patient during Clinton's first 100 days

(The following is by Robert Estill of Copley News Service.)

President Clinton has sidled an ambitious legislative schedule, but the Democratic-controlled Congress is unlikely to take away the ball to penalize him for delaying the game.

The consensus of Illinois lawmakers from both parties is that few Democrats will scream in protest if the new president's pledge of a legislatively productive "first 100 days" fades into the misty "never-never land" of unkept campaign promises.

Expectations are that Congress will tend to lesser business while awaiting Clinton's lead on such major issues as health care, deficit reduction and an economic recovery package.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois, said he believes Clinton will detail his plans within 100 days, but warned of problems if he fails to do so.

"If he waits six months to say what we ought to do, then I think there will be an erosion of support," Simon said.

Warning that a "vacuum doesn't exist in Washington very long," Simon alone among the lawmakers interviewed suggested that congressional leaders might take the initiative if Clinton does not act promptly. But he said he expects Clinton will offer an early program.

Rep. Harris Fawell, R-Naper, said Clinton already has "gone backward" on campaign promises to have an economic plan on "day one," halve the federal deficit in four years, push for tax relief for middle-income taxpayers, and welcome Haitian refugees to U.S. shores. Fawell said Clinton needs to swiftly propose a budget.

Fawell said there could be "trouble" with the public's perceptions, but Congressional Democrats are "ready to forgive his overpromises" and await the lead of the first Democratic president in a dozen years.

Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield, said the first 100 days are an "artificial benchmark" created by the news media and those who remember the first 100 days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933, when sweeping legislation was approved to counter the Depression.

Durbin said he expects a "level of cooperation and agreement between Congress and the president that is really unparalleled in many years."

Rep. George Sangmeister, D-Mokena, said he does not see the need for a deadline of the "first 100 days" for most major bills, and that a "reasonable timetable" would have legislation moving by June or July.

He does make one exception. If Clinton decides a short-term economic package is needed, that should be done within 100 days, Sangmeister said.

Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Marietta, said Clinton should send proposals to Congress within the first 100 days that deal with the inter-related issues of the economy, deficit and health care. But Congress will wait, he said.

"I think Congress is going to give him the opportunity to put his program forward," Poshard said. "I don't think anybody is going to try to undermine him or to run end-runs around him."

Rep. Dennis Hastert, R-Yorkville, said Clinton needs to act quickly on jobs, health care and "some symbol that he's serious about curbing spending."

While Hastert does not expect congressional Democrats to wrest the lead role from Clinton, he said, "The longer he delays or dabbles with this, the tougher it is for him to sell his agenda."

Freshman Rep. John Manzullo, R-Egan, said the irony is that Clinton will be "fully consumed" with the lead role from Clinton, he said, "The longer he delays or dabbles with this, the tougher it is for him to sell his agenda."

He said Democrats will move their own bills but not pre-empt Clinton on issues where the president chooses to lead.

"Congress won't take the ball away from Clinton," Manzullo said. "Clinton won't let that happen. He's too astute."

Rep. John Porter, R-Wilmette, predicted "a lot of delay" because Clinton still has to fill sub-Cabinet posts — the people who help shape and execute policy decisions and translate them into legislation.

"I don't think Congress is going to take any independent lead," Porter said. "All of the signals are going to come from the White House."

Rep. Philip Crane, R-Mount Prospect, said Democratic leaders probably would intercede if delays became a habit — but not in Clinton's first year in the White House.

"Out of deference to a newly inaugurated president, they will just sit on their hands and wait him out politely," Crane said.

Given "unreasonably high expectations" from the new administration, "disappointments are inevitable," said Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Bensenville. He said Clinton risks loss of credibility if he is unable to transform many of his campaign promises into legislation within three months.

Accreditation officials to visit BAC in March; overcrowding still a problem

By Lisa Burkhardt Chenoweth
Correspondent

The North Central Association of Colleges and Schools will visit Belleville Area College March 8-10 for an on-site evaluation. This is part of the accreditation process.

In preparation for the visit BAC Trustees held a special meeting last week to examine a self-study of the college.

The 212-page document prepared by a team of BAC faculty, employees and trustees is an essential part of the accreditation process.

The document cites BAC's overcrowded classrooms as a continuing problem for the college.

"We are victims of our own success," said BAC President Joe Cipri. "As you review the self-study, it becomes evident that our growing enrollments have literally affected all aspects of our operations."

The self-study points out that BAC's Belleville campus was originally designed for 3,500 students; now more than 10,000 are enrolled.

BAC is taking both short- and long-term steps to alleviate the growing pains. This summer the school is adding 10 modular classrooms to the Belleville campus, and four each to the Red Bud and Granite City campuses.

Also, a master site plan, unveiled last month, could triple the space of the campuses as needed over the next two decades.

The coordinator for the accreditation, H.O. Brownback, BAC's director of contractual education, said accreditation is technically voluntary. But in reality a college must have it to be eligible for federal and state grants, for students to receive financial aid and for degrees and credits earned to be transferred to any institution in the United States.

The NCA will send a seven-member team of college presidents, senior administrators and faculty to examine the college.

Brownback said the accreditation team will perform extensive interviews with the faculty, students and employees.

The team will review BAC's curriculum, administration, financial condition, admissions, marketing materials, resources and its relationship with outside communities.

Quinn blasts Belle owner for stock sale

SPRINGFIELD — State Treasurer Patrick Quinn is blasting the Illinois Gaming Board for allowing Republican power broker and businessman William Cellini to rake in millions from his recent ownership of the Alton Belle Casino.

Cellini, the largest single shareholder in Argosy Gaming Co., which owns the Alton Belle, recently cashed in for $4.9 million on the sale of Argosy stock and still holds 3.05 million shares, or 12.6 percent of the company.

While being interviewed for a program called "The Reporters," which is broadcast on Chicago radio station WMAQ, Quinn ripped Cellini's profits from the Alton Belle on the grounds there has been little payment on a state loan for construction of a Springfield hotel in which Cellini was a principal owner.

"We got steam coming out of my ears. It's downright obscene," Quinn said.

Cellini, a Democrat, contended the Gaming Board, whose original members were appointed by former Gov. James Thompson, should never have approved Cellini as an owner of the Alton Belle because of the history of renegotiating the loan to build the Ramada Renaissance Hotel.

He said the Gaming Board licensing of Cellini showed state government was a personal piggy bank for insiders.

"For Cellini to be given a license by Illinois to open a riverboat gambling operation in Alton and then not to pay back that (hotel) loan on a timely basis despite overgenerous terms... there's something wrong," Quinn said.

The terms of the loan were renegotiated in an agreement approved by Thompson and former Treasurer Jerry Cosentino on their last day in office in January 1991. The Springfield hotel and one in Collinsville were not required under the agreement to make any payments on the state loans unless their revenues exceeded other operating expenses.

The owners of the Springfield hotel have filed a lawsuit to block Quinn's office from auditing the expenses.

Quinn spokeswoman Marj Halperin said Quinn also said Wednesday he favored a special state "windfall tax" on the profits of the riverboat gambling operators and also wanted legislation to bar Gov. Jim Edgar from continuing to accept campaign contributions from the riverboat gambling firms and race tracks.

Halperin said Quinn's "point is here is someone who didn't meet his commitment to the state and gets a license from the state basically to print money."

Cellini has stated in the past that he owns only a small interest in the hotel along with several other investors. Halperin was unable to provide information on the extent of Cellini's ownership. Cellini was a major fund-raiser for Thompson's campaigns. Companies in which he was involved held several major state contracts for building and leasing buildings to state agencies. His New Frontier real estate firm operates in both Springfield and Chicago.

Good Soles-drive extended

Organizers of Good Soles for Needy Souls, a St. Louis-area used shoe and boot drive, have extended the campaign to run through Saturday, March 6. The extra time is needed because of the recent inclement weather.

The second annual event is sponsored by Famous Brands Shoes in cooperation with the Suburban Journals and Catholic Charities. Used shoes collected in the drive will be distributed to needy families throughout the metro area.

People who donate a pair of used shoes or boots in good condition will receive a coupon worth $5 off the purchase of a new pair of shoes worth $30 or more.

All nine St. Louis-area Famous Brands stores will serve as collection points for the used shoes. To help increase the donation of children's shoes, where there is an urgent need, several area schools and churches have agreed to participate in the drive.

The Famous Brands locations include stores at Crossroads Shopping Center in Fairview Heights and 11248 W. Florissant Ave. in North County.

All shoes and boots collected will be distributed by Catholic Charities.

Area is one of top recyclers

When it comes to recycling aluminum, residents on both sides of the Mississippi rate among the best with one of the nation's leading recycling firms.

Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company (RARCO), the pioneer in consumer aluminum recycling, shows Illinois recyclers placing fifth nationwide in aluminum recycled through Reynolds centers in 1992.

Missouri recyclers were 17th. "When you consider most of the metal our firm purchases from the public in these two states come from Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City metropolitan areas, our overall rate is very good," said Ram C. Nair, area manager for RARCO.

Consumers in the three metropolitan areas recycled a combined 35 million pounds of aluminum — used beverage cans, foil, household aluminum — last year.

That figure was topped only by the state efforts of recyclers in Florida, California and Texas, Nair said.

"The majority of our Illinois and Missouri recyclers are individuals, families, schools, scouts, churches and civic organizations — who choose to recycle because it's the right thing to do. It's grassroots recycling at its best."

Improved performance by A.O. Smith Corp.

A.O. Smith Corp. has announced 1992 earnings of $26 million or $2.81 per share before a one-time charge for post-retirement benefits.

Its 1992 revenues were a record $1.05 billion, up 14 percent over 1991's revenues of $915.9 million. In 1991, net earnings applicable to common stock were essentially break-even.

"We achieved our 1992 objective, which was to substantially improve our profits," Robert J. O'Toole, chairman and chief executive officer, said.

"It is encouraging that we achieved this turn-around even though we continued to experience recession-related weakness in some areas of our business."

Three of A.O. Smith's four largest operating units reported increased sales and profits in 1992. Automotive Products Co., which has a Granite City plant, experienced the most significant improvement with sales 24 percent higher than the prior year.

Sales of $527.6 million represented Automotive's best performance since 1988.

The higher volumes and an improved cost structure were responsible for the company returning to profitability after reporting an operating loss in 1991.

The Water Products Co., a leading manufacturer of residential and commercial water heaters, set sales and profit records in 1992. The improvement in profitability was the result of higher volumes and effective cost control.

Two units fell short of their profit objectives in 1992.

The Electrical Products Co. reported higher sales and profits compared with the prior year, but competitive market conditions and the lingering effects of the recession prevented more significant earnings improvement.

Smith Fiberglass Products' earnings were substantially lower than the previous year, the result of a 19 percent decrease in sales.

The agricultural business had revenues of $34 million in 1992 and negatively impacted earnings by about 12 cents per share.

The operating companies' fourth quarter performance reflected the trends shown throughout the year.

Fourth-quarter 1992 earnings were $6.2 million or 60 cents per share compared with $1.9 million or 24 cents per share earned in the same period the previous year. Revenues were $265.4 million compared with revenues of $232 million during the fourth quarter of 1991.

Bill Terrell

Terrell earns sales honor

Bill H. Terrell, area manager in Granite City for the Franklin, Springfield, Ill., has earned one of the company's top sales honors, according to Franklin Chairman Howard C. Humphrey, certified life underwriter.

Humphrey said that Terrell has qualified for Franklin's Centurion Club, a national honor organization of the insurance company's most successful sales associates.

Terrell's qualification was based on outstanding personal sales totals for November. Founded in 1884, the Franklin has over 3,000 sales associates.

Stock splits can spur growth

Wal-Mart recently announced a two-for-one stock split. This is a good example of one benefit to investing in growth/equity for the long term.

After the price of a stock has risen substantially, management of a company may decide to split the stock.

The rationale for the stock split is that it lowers the price of the stock and makes it more accessible to investors.

Implicit in this reasoning are the beliefs that potential investors prefer lower priced shares and that reducing the price of the stock is of benefit to the current stockholders by widening of the market for their stock.

Like the stock dividend, the stock split is a recapitalization. It does not affect the assets or liabilities of the firm, nor does it increase its earning power.

The wealth of the stockholders is increased only if potential investors prefer lower-priced stocks, which will increase the demand for the stock.

In a two-for-one stock split, one old share becomes two new shares, and the value of the old stock is halved.

There are now twice as many shares outstanding, and each new share is worth half as much as one old share.

If the stock had sold for $60 before the split, each share is now worth $30. The stockholder with 100 old shares worth $6,000 now owns 200 shares worth $6,000.

Stock splits may be any combination of terms. Although two-for-one splits are the most common, there can be unusual terms, such as the five-for-one split of Superior Industries in 1989.

There is no obvious explanation for such terms except that management wanted to reduce the stock's price to a particular level and selected the terms that would achieve the desired price.

Occasionally there is a reverse split, such as the 1989 Tosco one-for-five split.

A reverse split reduces the number of shares and raises the price of the stock. One purpose of such a split is to add price respectability to the stock.

The following example is a true representation of Wal-Mart's stock performance, but it does not guarantee future performance.

It is a good example of the financial power of a stock that has split numerous times, combined with a sharply rising value after each split. The end result is fascinating.

On Oct. 1, 1970, Wal-Mart became a public company, offering 300,000 shares at $15 per share.

That day it traded at $16.50. If an investor purchased 100 shares that day, he would have an initial investment of $1,650 (100 x $16.50).

Wal-Mart has since announced 10 two-for-one stock splits and that same individual would now own 102,400 shares. (Take 100 and multiply it by two, 10 times.)

In the last 52 weeks, Wal-Mart has traded as high as 67 5/8. However, one would need to have that price to include it in the most recent split.

If that original investor held his $1,650 investment since Oct. 1, 1970, he would now own more than $3 million in Wal-Mart stock (102,400 shares multiplied by $30-plus dollar per share).

This is without putting another penny of the investor's own money into the original investment.

That story is what every investor dreams of when putting money in the stock market. Unfortunately, few investors can tell a story like that.

They move in and out of the market, trying to "buy low and sell high."

The Wal-Mart story illustrates a key ingredient to investing in the market or equity-oriented vehicles.

Time in the market, not timing the market, is the key to attaining real investment success.

Wanted! 70 Students To Share $41,000

Odds of winning the Illinois Lottery may be several million to one, but your chances of winning a scholarship to Belleville Area College are thousands of times better.

More than 70 BAC district residents will share in the approximately $41,000 scholarship program provided by individuals, businesses and organizations throughout the district.

If you live within the BAC district and plan to enroll at one of the three campuses or over 20 extension centers for the 1993-94 academic year, you may be eligible to win an all- or partially-paid year at a college close to home, a college where instructors care about their students and where classes are scheduled to accommodate the needs of all residents of the district.

Eligibility varies by scholarship, but Foundation Board of Directors Scholarship Committee Chair Lucille Davis is confident that everyone planning to enroll will find at least one scholarship that seems tailored to his or her special circumstances.

Questions may also be directed to the Foundation at 235-2700 or 800-BAC-5131, ext. 215. A brochure listing scholarships and eligibility requirements is available from BAC financial aid counselors on all three campuses. Information about scholarships and financial aid can be obtained by calling Mary Brown at extension 441 at the Granite City Campus, Roger Knox at ext. 277 at the Belleville Campus, and Liz Sander at ext. 338 at the Red Bud Campus.

To be considered for the scholarships, residents should apply by March 15.

Applications are available from BAC Financial Aid and Student Employment offices and the BAC Foundation on the Belleville campus, counselors and libraries at high schools throughout the district, public libraries, and BAC libraries in Belleville, Granite City and Red Bud.

Catch Your Breath & Clean The Air With Houseplants!

Houseplant Trivia

Did You Know?

- Houseplants clean harmful toxins from the air we breathe!
- Caring for plants can actually help eliminate stress!
- Houseplants can help prevent diseases and help keep us healthy!
- 15 to 20 plants in an average home or office can do the work of a high-efficiency air filter!

Indoor Air Pollution Is A Health Hazard We Can Help Solve

In the closed environment of today's homes and, especially offices, air quality is often a health concern. Chemicals in building materials, cleaning products, furniture, paints, varnishes and office equipment are all potential pollutants. Gasses released from inks, plastics, rubber, tobacco smoke, even human breathing all add to the problem. Houseplants are a viable solution to this pollution hazard. We can all help!

The Green Houseplant Solution

According to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) and the Plants for Clean Air Council's (PCAC) research, virtually every foliage plant and many flowering ones, are potentially powerful air cleaners. All green plants produce oxygen and absorb carbon dioxide during photosynthesis.

But roots, soil and soil microorganisms also play a vital part in cleansing the air. Common foliage houseplants like Ficus (Fig), Spider Plants, Schefflers, Ives and Philodendrons are good at removing formaldehyde, for example — while being effective general air cleaners. Specific plants are particularly effective at removing specific pollutants. Here's a partial list based on NASA and PCAC research:

Specific plants are particularly effective at removing specific pollutants. Here's a partial list based on NASA and PCAC research:

Pollutant — FORMALDEHYDE
Source: foam insulation, plywood, particle board, clothes, carpeting, furniture, paper goods, household cleaners, water repellents. Plant Solutions: Boston Fern, Philodendron, Gerbera Daisy, Dwarf Date Palm, Bamboo Palm, Spider Plant, Golden Pothos, Corn Plant, Orchid and Weeping Fig.

Pollutant — BENZENE and TRICHLOROETHYLENE
Source: tobacco smoke, gasoline, synthetic fibers, plastics, inks, oils, detergents, rubber, varnishes, paints, adhesives and dry cleaning lacquers. Plant Solutions: Gerbera Daisy, Marginalia Peace Lily, Janet Craig, Warneckel, Mum, English Ivy and Sansevieria.

Most, if not all of these plants, are available at Frank's Nursery.

Plants Improve Our Lives In Many Ways

Beyond their wonderful capacity for cleaning the air we breathe, plants improve the quality of our lives in dozens of ways. Studies show that plants are great stress relievers. Caring for them brings us in closer contact with the natural world, making us more mindful of our environment. Indoors or out, our own plants can provide a valuable and welcome addition to the diet.

Culinary herbs, for instance, are easy to grow and will thrive in any sunny window. Salad greens can be grown year 'round in containers indoors. These and other edible plants provide an inexpensive and healthful way to add flavor and interest to meals at home.

Plants are also great for kids. Growing a plant gives a child, precious insight into the living world and a rare opportunity, in these automated times, to appreciate the work of his or her own two hands.

Air quality and the environment is a great concern to us at Frank's. We're happy to be able to offer a practical, inexpensive way to help improve the quality of your air. By using common houseplants you can cleanse your environment. We'll all breathe easier if you grow plants at home and the office.

Peabody

COAL COMPANY

February 26, 1993

An Open Letter To Our Employees, Retirees, and Communities:

The selective strike by the United Mine Workers of America International against Peabody Coal Co. is now in its fourth week. The strike, involving 2,800 Peabody Coal employees in Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky, risks the permanent loss of jobs because it comes at a time when the Midwest coal industry is already struggling with the effects of the Clean Air Act and a recessionary economy.

At this point, it is difficult to determine why the union is delaying the start of talks on a new contract. The Bituminous Coal Operators Association (BCOA) – our multi-employer bargaining group – has received authorization to provide, for bargaining purposes only, information the union demanded about non-union subsidiaries of BCOA parent companies, including Peabody Holding Co. BCOA also has been authorized to discuss job opportunities at non-union operations of BCOA members and their parent companies, including Peabody Holding Co.

Despite meeting these pre-conditions demanded by the union and despite repeated offers by the BCOA to extend the prior contract 60 days to start bargaining on a new agreement, the UMWA has refused to let talks begin.

The fact that Peabody Coal operates only UMWA-represented facilities makes this situation especially difficult for our employees and our company.

By refusing to bargain, we can only conclude that the union appears to have other goals, such as legislative objectives in Washington. If this is true, it's unfair to the men and women of Peabody Coal who are sacrificing their livelihoods.

Peabody Coal's customers are starting to look elsewhere for their coal supplies, and that threatens the job of every employee at our mines. For this reason, Peabody Coal has begun to produce and ship coal from several mines, using supervisory personnel. We intend to meet our customers' demands and thereby preserve jobs at Peabody Coal.

The selective strike is hurting the economies of Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky. We at Peabody Coal are anxious to get bargaining started and get Peabody Coal employees back to work. We regret the loss of income for our employees and the inconvenience to the public caused by this strike. We ask all of our employees to return to work as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

G.S. Shiflett
President

First of several child-desertion bills moves forward in 'home alone' battle

SPRINGFIELD — The first of several bills introduced in response to the Chicago "home alone" case has cleared a legislative committee.

The House Judiciary II Committee Thursday sent on to the full House a measure that creates new criminal offenses of child desertion and aggravated child desertion.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Thomas Dart, D-Chicago, and passed by the committee 13-0, was introduced in response to the children who were left at home while their parents vacationed in Mexico.

Some lawmakers said they may not vote for the bill on the House floor unless changes were made.

The child desertion charge would apply to parents or legal guardians who leave children under the age of 14 "without adequate supervision for an unreasonable period of time."

The bill does not specify a particular time period but instead says the court should consider a dozen factors.

The factors include:

- Age of the child.
- Number of children.
- Whether the child has special needs such as a need for medication or a disability.
- Location of the place where the child was left.
- The time of day or night when the child was unsupervised.
- Weather conditions and whether the child had adequate heat and light.
- Location of the parent or guardian and physical distance from the child.
- Whether the child's movement was restricted or the child was locked in a room or other structure.
- Whether the child was given a phone number to call in an emergency.
- Whether there were food and other provisions left for the child.
- Any other factor that could endanger the child's health and safety.

Under the bill, child desertion would be a felony punishable by one to three years in prison. Aggravated child desertion would apply if the child involved was younger than 7 and would carry a sentence of two to five years.

Dart and Cook County Circuit Judge John Wasilewski, who endorsed the bill on behalf of the Illinois State Bar Association, argued that the current law is inadequate to protect children who are left alone for long periods.

Dart said the Chicago area couple who recently grabbed headlines might escape penalties under current law.

However, an opponent of the bill, Rep. Tim Johnson, R-Urbana, argued the legislation was too broad and too vague and might result in single parents being charged with felonies for situations that did not pose harm to children.

Johnson also questioned the wisdom of sending parents to prison for five years, instead of just removing the children from their homes.

The Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence also objected to the bill, saying it needed safeguards that would give some flexibility to working parents.

property a block up the street."

The city is currently acquiring the property in the 2000 block of Madison and Grand avenues for development by a retail pharmaceutical firm. The city is in the process of using its "quick-take" power there after failing to negotiate purchases with owners of several of the properties.

"If you look at what has happened down the block at Madison and 20th, you can see part of the problem of waiting (for interested developer). We've been at it there for a year and a half," Orbals said. "A developer or a company is usually not going to string along with you for that long.

"Development plans are usually not made all that far in the future. It's usually quarterly."

"We're going to build X number of stores in the next quarter" and not "We're going to build a store two or so years from now."

"That's why it's important to have the property already in hand."

As part of the proposed deal with Magna Bank, the city would also buy a parking lot located in the 2000 block of Edison Avenue near the Granite City Township Building and in turn sell Magna Bank a parking lot the city owns in the 1900 block of State Street behind Jerry's Restaurant.

Scrubbers

and allow the power plant to continue its use of Illinois-produced high-sulfur coal, was mandated under Senate Bill 629. That bill also gave Illinois Power $35 million in state incentives for the scrubber construction, she said.

But, citing an adverse internal financial review of the scrubber project, Illinois Power discontinued construction of the scrubbers in August 1988 and 1989.

Under the federal Clean Air Act of 1990, the scrubbers must be completed for the Baldwin plant to use Illinois-produced coal.

Dan Reitz, chairman of the Sparta-based SCRUB, said discontinuing the use of Illinois coal at Baldwin would cost 1,600 coal-mining jobs and as many as 6,200 spinoff jobs in Southern Illinois.

"SCRUB represents communities who will be left in economic darkness if Illinois Power rejects the state law and does not build the scrubbers," Reitz said.

"My lights will be out and we'll try to get the word out," Hawkins said. "The state needs to make Illinois Power keep its part of the bargain."

"But after what happened with the big IP (electric) rate increase, it's hard to be optimistic about (Lights Out, Illinois) doing much good."

Hawkins said POWER had helped put together "record turn-outs" to oppose Illinois Power electric rate increases at Illinois Commerce Commission hearings in 1988 and 1989.

"And I think our side got a fair hearing by the commissioners who were there," Hawkins said.

But then, (then) Gov. Jim Thompson got rid of the two ICC commissioners who were at the hearings and replaced them with his campaign cronies. Well, it really just takes the wind out of your sails when something like that happens and our little group, I guess, had its heart broken."

Joining with POWER and SCRUB to protest the discontinuance of the scrubber construction is U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, who said he would introduce legislation to force the state to complete the scrubbers.

Costello said he would introduce legislation to force the state to complete the scrubbers.

All-Stater

Williams' quest for state ends, but name lives on

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

The season came to a conclusion much sooner than expected for the Madison High basketball team Friday night. But Ron Williams is still going out a winner.

Williams was named to the Associated Press Class A All-State basketball team last week, an honor the senior standout — and his teammates — can savor despite Friday's season-ending loss to Lebanon at the Westlin Class A Regional. Williams reached back and came up with 33 points against Lebanon in a losing effort.

The Trojans, who ended the year 14-12, played an exceptionally challenging schedule, this season in the hopes of being ready at tournament time. But Lebanon, led by Allen Berry's 46 points, reached the regional title game instead with a 66-50 victory.

The loss was difficult for Williams and his teammates to take. All week, Williams had been pressing himself to deliver after being named All-State. He posted one of his stronger offensive efforts of the year Friday.

A win would have allowed Madison to advance to the title game and play Venice for the third time this year.

"We most definitely wanted to play Venice for a third time," Williams said. "It was a bad way to go out, but I tried to do the best I could. It just hurts to go out like this."

Williams spent most of the year proving he is All-State caliber.

"I got a lot of heat from people this week saying I needed to prove myself...I just wanted to go out and play hard."

ber. He averaged 22 points and 10 rebounds against some of the best Class A teams in the state.

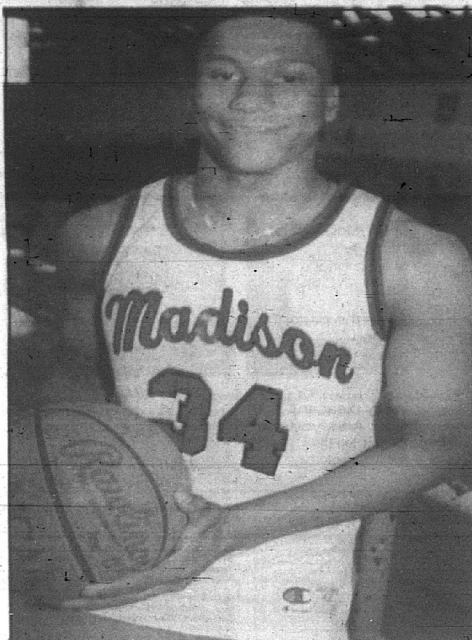

Madison coach Al Collins, while disappointed with the way the season ended, said it was nice to see Williams rewarded for his efforts this season.

"It was a great honor for him," Collins said. "That's one plus we got out of this year. He was our leader."

Like his counterpart from Lebanon, Berry, Williams did everything possible to keep Madison's season alive. Williams might have been overshadowed by Berry's scintillating 46-point effort, but the outcome could have been different.

Just as Lebanon appeared to be putting the game away midway through the fourth quarter, Williams stepped up and kept the Trojans in the game by hitting three straight 3-point baskets on consecutive trips down the court. His output, however, was matched by Berry, who was

Senior's standout pours in 46, finishes off Madison cagers

Madison High basketball coach Al Collins said it repeatedly Friday night after watching his team lose 66-50 to Lebanon: one player cannot — should not — beat you.

But once again, Lebanon sensation Allen Berry defied conventional wisdom with his 46-point, 12-rebound outburst against the Trojans at the Trenton Westlin Class A Regional. Berry led his team almost singlehandedly into the regional title game against Venice, scheduled for Saturday night.

The Trojans, eliminated from the regional, concluded their season.

Berry, who scored 43 points in Lebanon's first-round 81-79 win over Freeburg on Tuesday, had 20 points by halftime. He quieted down in the third quarter, scoring just five points.

Berry then turned up his game a notch in the final quarter. He drove to the basket, hit outside jumpers and made timely passes to his teammates. Berry scored 21 points in the final quarter and had Lebanon's final 12 points of the game.

"There's no way in the world you can let one man beat you, but we did," Collins said. "That's one kid who can take over and dominate a game. We wanted to make him work, but there was just no defense on our part."

players I've seen who can control the game by himself."

Berry's no-look passes and accuracy from the field were astounding. He hit six 3-pointers and made 12 of 14 free throws.

Two other Lebanon players scored in double figures, Richard Douglas (18 points) and Duane Roth (16 pts.). But it was Berry's presence on the court and game decisions that set up the majority of Lebanon's baskets.

"He did a fantastic job," Lebanon coach John Schieppe said. "He came to play ball tonight. His passing was unbelievable, and his awareness of the court was something else."

"He's really been taking control of every game we've won. That was evident from the start."

GAME of the WEEK

Warrior cagers ready to enter regional play

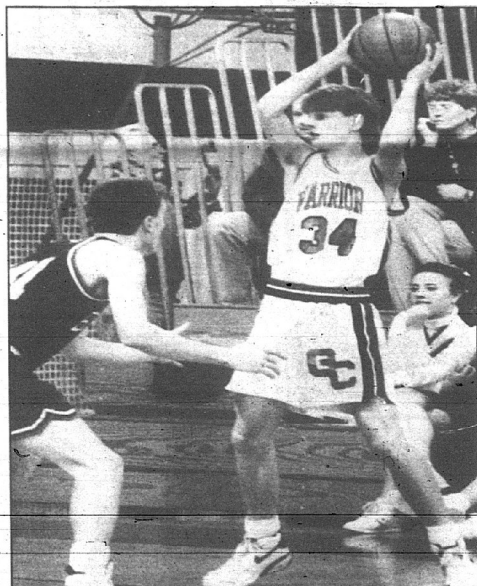

The Granite City High School boys basketball team will enter regional play this week with Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. game at Edwardsville in the Edwardsville Class AA Sectional Competition.

The Warriors were seeded 14th among the 16-team field earlier this season, and Edwardsville was seeded third. The Tigers were 18-6 heading into Friday night's game at Calukia, and the Warriors were 7-15 before Saturday night's regular-season finale at Belleville West. The Belleville West game was moved from Friday because the weather this week forced school closings.

The winner of the Granite City-Edwardsville game will move on to face either sixth-seeded Joplinville or 12th-seeded Taylorville in a regional title game. The sectional championship will be held at Edwardsville on March 12.

The Warriors and the Tigers met earlier this year, on Feb. 6, Edwardsville won 79-46.

The Tigers are led by 6-foot-7 senior center Andrew Thompson, an All-State candidate.

Granite City junior Jason Black has come on strong for the Warriors in the second half of the season. He and his teammates will be facing Edwardsville on Wednesday night.

Northeast Missouri swimmer making waves as sophomore

McCormick sets record, just misses nationals

By R.J. Gerber
Staff writer

Bill McCormick knew he was capable of breaking the one-minute mark in the 100-meter breaststroke, but what the Granite City High graduate didn't expect was to barely miss qualifying for national competition as a member of the Northeast Missouri State University swimming team.

McCormick, a sophomore at NMSU in Kirksville, Mo., posted a school-record time of 59.91 in the breaststroke at the Midwest Classic Championships in Indianapolis on Feb. 20. Before that, McCormick swam a 58.2 as a member of the Bulldog relay team. But that didn't count toward individual results. The cut for national qualifying was 58.29.

But not qualifying didn't bother McCormick that much. He was just happy to be swimming without pain.

McCormick had been battling tendinitis in his left shoulder. He said not qualifying was a disappointment at first.

"I didn't expect to go that fast," he said. "I was just hoping to break a minute."

"This has really got me psyched up for next year. This has built up my confidence, although I had a bad race that night (during the individual qualifying)."

McCormick's relay team also set a school record at Indianapolis in the 400 medley. The third-place swimmers recorded a time of 3:35.56, shattering the old record of 3:38.87.

Bulldog coach Andy Johns said McCormick's progress has been a great addition to the team, which finished with a 2-6 dual record.

"Bill did incredibly well in Indianapolis," Johns said. "Bill is the first-year head coach said, 'Bill is a real competitor who gets really focused. He has really raised our expectations.'"

McCormick also had some success earlier in the season, placing first at the Bradley Invitational with a time of 1:18.48 in the 200 breaststroke. He also finished first in the 110 breaststroke (1:02.67) in a dual meet at MIA.

McCormick was a big contributor for the Bulldogs during his freshman season as well. He set school records in the 200 and 400 medley relay and 100 and 200 breaststroke. He said Johns has been a big help.

"He's been great," McCormick said. "He's really educated and he's been through this before after swimming at East Carolina. He is a young guy who can relate to us."

Jaros, Goclan to participate in all-star game

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

Mike Jaros and Chris Goclan, the two scoring leaders for the Granite City hockey team and also the Mid-States Club Hockey Association, have been selected to participate in the league all-star game March 7.

The game, which is for Mid-States seniors, will be played at the Affton Athletic Association rink.

Goclan

Jaros and Goclan have led Granite City to the Mid-States American Conference semifinals. Jaros, a senior defenseman, has recorded 40 goals this year, second only to Goclan in the league. Goclan, a center, has scored 47 goals.

Jaros and Goclan's totals were through last Saturday's game against Lindbergh in the first round of the playoffs. The Warriors were skating against Eureka on Friday and Saturday night in the conference semifinals.

The Warriors were playing for the right to advance to Monday's American Conference title game, which will be played at 6 p.m. at the St. Louis Arena.

The Warriors have never advanced to a Mid-States title game, but their chances to do so this weekend appeared strong. The Warriors, under second-year coach Jake Hinterer, entered the weekend with an 18-2-3 record and a 21-game unbeaten streak.

The play of Jaros and Goclan has been a major reason for Granite City's success. They are the team's co-captains along with senior defenseman Rick Whynes and have been unstoppable at times this year.

Jaros and Goclan might have made Mid-States history last week when they accounted for four goals in just 41 seconds in a 6-2 win over Lindbergh.

Goclan also recorded a hat trick in the victory, his ninth of the season.

beginning, as Berry scored 11 of his team's 20 points in the first quarter. He came out and hit the first basket of the game, a 3-pointer to put the Greyhounds up 3-0.

Madison held a 24-20 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the game remained close and Lebanon came back to tie the score at 37 by halftime.

The teams traded baskets in the third quarter until the 3-point play by Douglas put the Greyhounds ahead 53-50 at the 3-minute mark. Lebanon kept the lead for the rest of the game.

Lebanon improved to 17-9, while Madison ended its season at 14-12.

"I knew this game would be tough, and we would be fortunate to win," Collins said. "This was a tough loss."

The last time the two teams met, Jan. 26, Berry was held from the game in the first quarter by Schieppe for disciplinary reasons. Berry came off the bench to score 27 points in an 80-62 loss.

On Friday, another regular starter was missing — senior forward Gary Roseboro. Schieppe said Roseboro missed the team bus.

The Greyhounds turned to a starting lineup of senior point guard Brian Blazier, Berry, Douglas, Roth and Chad Kerkick. Douglas, Roth and Kerkick are all sophomores.

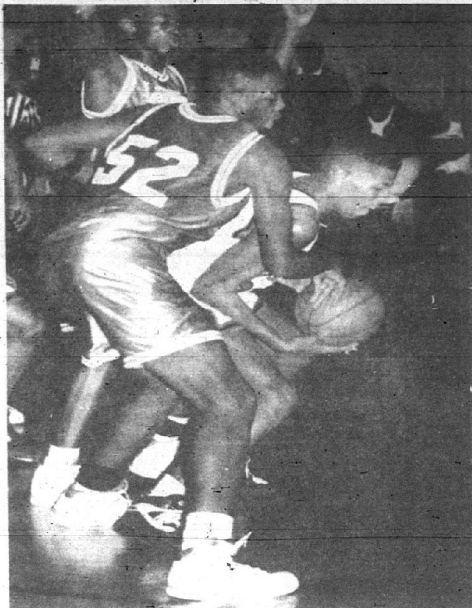

The only other player to score for Lebanon besides Douglas and Roth was reserve Steve Walraven, another sophomore. He had six points.

"Everyone contributed," Schieppe said.

Lebanon took control midway through the fourth quarter, when Berry came alive. He hit two free throws to give the Greyhounds a 69-60 lead with 4:41 left.

After a 3-pointer by Madison's Ron Williams, Berry came back with a 3-pointer of his own. Madison guard Robert Weathers blocked an initial shot by Berry, but Berry got the rebound and sank a 3-pointer to make it 72-63.

Berry iced the game with free throws down the stretch when the Trojans were forced to foul.

For Madison, the loss spoiled a 33-point performance by Williams. Williams tossed in five 3-pointers and pulled down 13 rebounds.

Last week, Williams was named on the Associated Press All-State team. Berry received an honorable mention, which was considered a snub, and he seems to have taken it out on his opponents.

"There's nothing we can ever do about it, although I wish someone could," Schieppe said.

"I wish he would have made it," Collins said. "I knew he was going to play this way because of it."

Bauer's big-league example being carried on

When the first snow hit Feb. 15, this scribe found a place to cuddle — with a book, of course. It confirmed not only one of the things I like about sports, but why baseball, in particular, has a hold on me.

The book, "Dynasty: The New York Yankees, 1949-1964," written by Peter Golenbock was published in 1975 by Prentice-Hall.

THE OBJECT of my attention was Hank Bauer, the East St. Louis native who also happens to be the great uncle of All-Star freshman basketball point guard Jill Gommie.

Bauer would be proud of his niece, Mrs. (Jim) Rose Marie Gommie, whose daughter as a freshman already has established herself as one of the area's best basketball players and could become the best female golfer in the history of Southern Illinois.

In basketball, Jill will do anything to win, even if it means diving for a loose ball or outbusting an opponent. A badly sprained ankle had her on crutches as the Crusaders entered postseason play.

Determination is Jill's as much as it was Hank Bauer's. And while I wonder how much of a difference that ingredient makes, I know it's lacking in baseball. That's why I thought I'd pass along an excerpt from "Dynasty" regarding Bauer, who spent 14 years playing in the major leagues with a career batting average of .277 from 1949-61, played in nine World Series with the New York Yankees and managed for seven seasons with Kansas City (two) and Baltimore (five).

AS A YOUNGSTER, I watched Bauer play. As an adult, I had one opportunity to speak with him briefly at Jack English's Restaurant in Belleville. But thanks to Golenbock — and the snow — I learned to appreciate the former Yankee, now retired and residing in the Kansas City area.

In an early chapter entitled "The Early Years, 1919-54," Bauer explained:

"I grew up in East St. Louis

during the Depression. My Dad made 60 bucks every two weeks. My oldest sisters used to bring home support. We all lived at home and bought our own clothes. I remember I had to be home at nine o'clock until I was 16 years old. They had a whistle in town that blew at nine o'clock. When that thing started blowing, I started running.

"MY PARENTS WERE born in the old country (Austria) and they didn't understand my playing baseball. They'd say, 'How the hell can you get paid for playing?' My Dad saw me play one time. It was 1949, and he went to see me play a game in St. Louis against the Browns. I had two singles and a triple, and it was hotter than hell. I came home after the game, and he's sitting on the screened-in porch, and says, 'Don't they ever let you walk? Do you always have to run?'"

"I told him, 'Poppa, if I start walking, they'll start getting rid of me.'"

Bauer explained why he entered the Marines after his first year of pro ball with Oshkosh, Wis., in 1941.

"I wasn't really gung-ho or anything like that until I got over there, but they told me I could take up a good trade. So I was going to take up pipefitting. But I never saw a pipe for four years. I just carried that damn old rifle. We landed on New Georgia, Guadalcanal, Guam, and on Easter Sunday morning, 1944, I landed on Okinawa."

OF THE 64 men in Bauer's platoon, all but six were killed. Bauer, whose brother Herman died in the war, was hit on the thigh by shrapnel, but still helped evacuate some of the wounded. He received a Purple Heart for his bravery, the second he won.

In January of 1946, he was discharged and soon after signed by Frank Lane, the general manager of the Kansas City Blues, the Yankees' Triple-A farm club. After an excellent season with Quincy and two with the Blues, the day before Labor Day, 1948, he was promoted to New York.

Three-for-three in his first game, Bauer became a favorite of manager Casey Stengel, who platooned the outfielder with Gene Woodling — a situation that made them both play harder and may have extended their careers.

BAUER ADDED: "I wasn't blessed with natural ability like a lot of ballplayers. I had to work like hell. I was blessed with a good arm and a good pair of legs. But for the other skills in baseball I worked my butt off. I wasn't a real good hitter. I wasn't a real good outfielder. But a lot of other ballplayers have natural ability which just goes down the drain."

Bauer recalled a spring training game when Dick Wakefield pinch-hit for him and hit a two-run homer. The next inning, Wakefield let a bases-loaded single go between his legs in right field, allowing three runs to score.

In the dugout, Stengel repeated his liking for Bauer by saying: "I don't like them fellows who drive in two runs and let in three. That starts me minus one."

Stengel told Bauer "I want guys like you. You got strawberries on both sides of your butt."

STRAWBERRIES? Today's players would be on the disabled list due to a bruise. Can you imagine one of Bauer's teammates — Dimaggio, Mantle, Martin, Berra, Rizzuto — not showing up to play?

Remember the name Gommie. Jill's dad, Jim, was a good athlete in his own right as a football player at St. Benedict's College in Kansas. And Mom, nicknamed Boo-Boo, was a Bauer. Uncle Hank has to be proud of his example.

HEA beginning membership drive

The February meeting of the Granite City Unit HEA was opened with an invocation given by Sophia Thomas. After this, a luncheon was served by the hostesses Ann Miller, LaNell Lessig and Sophia Thomas.

The pledge to the flag was recited by all and Betty Goldschied led in singing the Homesteaders' Hymn. In the absence of the first vice Elizabeth Edwards, who was in the hospital, President Mary Evelyn Vachon thanked the hostesses and introduced Barbara Rogers, who gave an interesting lesson on "Shopping at Home by Mail or TV."

Roll call was taken and there were 26 members in attendance. Treasurer Nina Dittman reported on the Program Planning Meeting, which was held in Edwardsville on Jan. 6.

Second Vice Clella Scheiber talked about the Kick Off Luncheon, scheduled for Feb. 22, and also talked about the membership drive beginning Feb. 22 and ending April 30.

Betty Goldschied reported that she has received 31 dolls. It was agreed by the unit to have dolls returned for club distribution.

President Mary Evelyn reminded all the ladies about the Bake Sale on Feb. 14 at the Harold Brown Recreation Center. Also, the IHSA annual conference will be in Champaign March 23-25.

The hostesses for the March meeting will be Ann Pates, Florence Harnauer and Vincine Zerlan. The lesson on "Passing Down Family Traditions" will be given by Florence Stokes and Sophia Thomas. There will also be a White Elephant Sale.

Now, hold on, folks, I am reliably informed that there is nothing more explicit than material found in pornography stores because those stores, where legal, have no limits.

And for Channel 4 to suggest that it is going to take a serious look at the problem of salacious material available to anyone who can use a computer — and it is a problem — is a joke given the standards of commercial television. So, no matter how eagerly the voyeur crowd watches the series, it just isn't going to happen.

The story is this: If you can use a computer you can see some really raunchy stuff. And people of practically any age can use a computer. That's all TV can tell. The story was done a few weeks before the Channel 4 series, and it didn't change before the series was presented. So, bottom line, why the series?

Answer: Check the calendar. How else do you explain another series of stories which the station did over at least two weeks which could have been titled — maybe it was — "Backstage at 'Northern Exposure.'" (That program, as you may have guessed, also appears on Channel 4 9 p.m. Mondays.) That's not news, either. That's promotion, including the part where they give away part of next week's show even though, we are told, CBS didn't really want Channel 4 to tape that scene. Right?

Unfortunately, Channel 4 did not invent the practice of riding the back of a popular show to improve news ratings, and other affiliates, from time to time, have felt compelled to do "backstage" series. We can only hope that KSDK-TV (Channel 5) can resist doing a "The Making of the Final 'Cheers' Episode" series.

The line between news and entertainment becomes ever more blurred (big assist to the arsonists at NBC). Why is Oprah Winfrey's interview of Michael Jackson big news across the country? Because editors and producers everywhere declared it so. Why are the myriad of societal oddities which become the fodder of Sunday night made-for-TV movies the basis of news stories in the newscasts which follow them? Because it is easy to promote the newscast that way.

And what about the fictionalization of disasters such as the earthquake in Oakland which destroyed highways and lives? Those programs aren't news, of course, but a lot of people will think of them as history.

Operatic "Exposure"

Speaking of "Northern Exposure," there's a published report that Carly Simon has been asked to write an episode which would be done entirely as an opera. As the only person who ever admitted publicly to liking "Cop Rock," I look forward to it.

Of course, I am almost completely ignorant on the subject of opera, since the only thing I know is what it's not over until. But, one way or another, culture is catching up with us. Be warned.

Of course, this is also the space where I confidently predicted, on the death of "Cop Rock," that another, similar program, would rise to take its place. So far, I haven't come across it in the listings.

Son of "Hill Street"

What I have come across — but not enough is "Homicide — Life on the Street" (8 p.m. Wednesday). I have managed to see it only once so far. That's not a fair sample, but what I saw I thought incredibly good. For everyone who misses "Hill Street Blues" this may be the answer. "Hill Street," by the way, is available in rerun on KPLR-TV (Channel 11) at 11 p.m. Monday through Friday. Ian MacBryde is an independent video producer and former television executive.

One-woman show at SIUE Wednesday

Carol Lynn Pearson, an actress, poet and author, will perform her one-person show, "Mother Wove The Morning," at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 3, in Meridian Hall at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The presentation is sponsored by the SIUE Women's Studies Program & Consortium, the SIUE Student Program Board and Womyn for Womyn, a student organization. The play chronicles the lives of 16 women throughout history — a Paleolithic woman; an Egyptian priestess; a biblical woman, who watched the rape of a Levite concubine; a Gnostic woman; a medieval witch; a shaker deaconess; and others — whose dramatic stories show that the human family has "always longed for its mother in heaven." Pearson said. Tickets are $10; students with a valid student ID, $5. For information, call SIUE 692-2660.
